

LAST CALL FOR ABSTRACTS ILTER All Scientists Meeting of the Americas 2014

Valdivia, Chile, 1-3 December 2014

The Coordination Committee of the International Long-Term Ecological Research Network (ILTER), which brings together representatives of 38 country-level networks, gathers every year to promote collaboration between its members.

However, for the first time the ILTER Americas' Region is inviting all scientists interested in building a North / Central / South America partnership to gather in Valdivia, Chile (1-3 Dec 2014), to share experiences and build the grounds for continental long term ecological research. This meeting is directed to long-term ecological researchers, decision makers, ecosystem and environmental managers, and other interested public. We have put together an exciting program which includes oral and poster presentations in diverse topics. Participants also have the opportunity to propose workshops in these, or similar topics, with the aim of stimulating Americas' regional cooperation.

Abstracts for oral sessions can be submitted in the following four topics:

- LTSER experience around the world
- Earth Stewardship
- Temperate forests of the Americas: Parallels and contrasts
- Socio-ecological research in marine ecosystem

Abstracts for poster sessions can be submitted in the following four topics:

- LTSER experience around the world
- Science and policy
- Ecosystem management
- Education
- Outreach

We are also accepting workshop proposals in any topic related to LTER.

The deadline for abstract and workshop submission is June 30th

Please submit your abstract (max 500 characters) using the forms posted at <http://www.ltser-chile.cl/ilter-meeting-2014/abstracts.php> to congress@ltser-chile.cl

Looking forward to seeing you in Valdivia,

ILTER All-Scientists Meeting of the Americas
Organizing Committee

